TEENAGERS OPEN THEIR MINDS TO NEW IDEAS AND NEW PERSPECTIVES

Anytown is an intensive, leadership program that immerses high school students in some of today's most challenging issues. By interacting and engaging in activities with people from all different backgrounds and walks of life, students explore topics like race, gender, ethnicity, religion, economic status, disability, and sexual orientation. With the help of our trained social worker, counselors and volunteers, these teenagers open their minds to new ideas and new perspectives.

Coming from diverse backgrounds and different communities, Anytown delegates examine the causes of bias, bigotry and all forms of discrimination while building their own ideal community.

Through experiential activities, workshops, role plays, thought provoking discussions and more, Anytown challenges delegates to first imagine and then create an community based on inclusion, respect and understanding. The 2018 class of delegates represents our 16th Anytown year!
